

2019 Bachelor of Arts - Psychology with the degree of Bachelor of Laws

This double degree combination enables students who wish to gain skills in Law and Psychology providing them with a wide range of career opportunities in two well-respected fields. As social science subjects Psychology and Law complement each other well giving students a skill set that will prepare them for work either in the legal, corporate, commercial and social justice fields. The psychology degree is concerned with providing students with a scientific understanding in the psychological processes that underlie behaviour including perception, cognition, learning, motivation, neuroscience, psychopathology, personality, emotion, developmental psychology and social relationships, as well as training in the analysis of data and research methodologies. The psychology degree allows students to complete an accredited Psychology degree across three years, with the option to complete an additional fourth year of honours in Psychology, conditional on meeting the entry requirements.

The table below is a suggested first session for students beginning in Session 2, 2019. Please make your selection of units after reviewing the requirements of your award in the 2019 Handbook:
