

2019 MAJOR – Media, Culture and Communication

(Qualifying Major for Bachelor of Arts)

Media, Culture, Communication focuses on the analysis and critique of power relations through the disciplinary frameworks of media studies and cultural studies. Students follow a pathway through the major that embeds a rigorous and uncompromising critical approach to the power relations manifest in contemporary society. The major provides a stimulating education that questions our relationships with, and the influence of media. The units constituting the major cover cultural, social, political and ethical issues including case studies of domestic and international importance. Students will develop critically informed literacies to read and evaluate media and cultural texts from the everyday to the world-changing.

The table below is a suggested first session for students beginning in Session 2, 2019. Please make your selection of units after reviewing the requirements of your award in the 2019 Handbook:

Suggested First Session

Session 2, 2019

Unit Code	Unit Name
MAS105	Media Cultures
MUS102	Passion, Rebellion and Identity in Popular Music
ICOM101	Intercultural Relations
ACSH100	Academic Communication in the Social Sciences or Humanities

- You must also meet the general requirements for the degree for which you will qualify.
- It may be possible to satisfy the requirements of your degree by taking a different selection of units in your first session from those suggested above.
- Consider what units you will want to study in second and third year. Prerequisite requirements for those units must be completed prior to enrolment in the higher-level unit.
- You must select a Professional and Community Engagement (PACE) unit as part of the elective component of your degree. It is important to plan ahead for this requirement and allocate elective space for your chosen PACE unit. A list of eligible units is available at www.handbook.mq.edu.au/2019/Units/PACE.
- For a double major complete required units for both majors where possible in the first year. If considering a double major consult the criteria found at www.handbook.mq.edu.au/2019/Majors.
- You can receive specific program advice from the faculty at any stage in your degree by lodging a “Program Advice” enquiry via <http://ask.mq.edu.au>.
