

2018 Bachelor of Hellenic Studies

Students completing a Bachelor of Hellenic Studies develop proficiency in Modern and Ancient Greek across a range of modes of communication. They gain an understanding of Greek society and culture throughout history. Students learn about cultural differences and analyse the relationship between language and culture. The Macquarie University Hellenic Studies degree is unique in Australia, combining studies of modern and ancient language with Ancient History and contemporary Greek culture. It includes opportunities for innovative modes of learning including online delivery, in-country studies and internships. Students within this program are prepared for further study in Hellenic Studies and related fields through systematic acquisition of language proficiency, underpinned by a range of assessment methods. The program will powerfully enhance the employability of our graduates within the broad disciplines of ancient and modern world studies, allowing them the capacity to engage directly at an advanced level with original source material.
