

2019 MAJOR – Public Health: Policy and Promotion

(Qualifying Major for Bachelor of Human Sciences)

Modern public health is key to understanding how we shape and influence the factors for good health in our society. Human health is determined by environmental and social factors and many of these are closely related. In this major you will learn about how health policy is developed and how health promotion is conducted in local and global settings.

The table below is a suggested first session for students beginning in Session 2, 2019. Please make your selection of units after reviewing the requirements of your award in the 2019 Handbook:

- You must also meet the general requirements for the degree for which you will qualify.
- It may be possible to satisfy the requirements of your degree by taking a different selection of units in your first session from those suggested above.
- Consider what units you will want to study in second and third year. Prerequisite requirements for those units must be completed prior to enrolment in the higher-level unit.
- For a double major complete required units for both majors where possible in the first year. If considering a double major consult the criteria found at www.handbook.mq.edu.au/2019/Majors.
- You can receive specific program advice from the faculty at any stage in your degree by lodging a “Program Advice” enquiry via <http://ask.mq.edu.au>.
