

2019 Bachelor of Security Studies

In the 21st century governments and businesses need security analysts with the knowledge, skills and creativity to respond to dynamic and complex challenges. The Bachelor of Security Studies will prepare you to meet the needs of a rapidly changing sector. You will examine the onset and resolution of security threats from several perspectives, including: geopolitical, risk management strategies, emergency response, national resilience, business continuity planning and law enforcement. You will develop and use the practical skills in critical thinking, structured intelligence analysis and policy evaluation needed for effective security analysis in government and business.

The table below is a suggested first session for students beginning in Session 2, 2019. Please make your selection of units after reviewing the requirements of your award in the 2019 Handbook:

Suggested First Session

Session 2, 2019

Unit Code	Unit Name
PICT112	Strategy and Security in the Indo-Pacific
PICT111	Security in an Age of Risk
BBA102 or ISYS114	Principles of Management Introduction to Database
Elective	Choose an elective unit

- You must also meet the general requirements for the degree for which you will qualify.
- It may be possible to satisfy the requirements of your degree by taking a different selection of units in your first session from those suggested above.
- It is recommended that you consider undertaking studies in a language offered by the Department of International Studies. Completing 12cp from the units listed in a language major may assist in later studies or career prospects. If uncertain about which language to study, or why, we recommend you contact an academic advisor for Security Studies and/or International Studies.
- Consider what units you will want to study in second and third year. Prerequisite requirements for those units must be completed prior to enrolment in the higher-level unit.
- For a double major complete required units for both majors where possible in the first year. If considering a double major consult the criteria found at www.handbook.mq.edu.au/2019/Majors.
- You can receive specific program advice from the faculty at any stage in your degree by lodging a "Program Advice" enquiry via <http://ask.mq.edu.au>.
